hPa

At hPa, we design and manufacture products for some of the most demanding men in duty in the world : marine special forces, coast guards, firemen, offshore workers ...

We put the same pride, passion and dedication in our (p)leasure goods, recognized worldwide by hardcore anglers, adventurers, divers or bike messengers alike.

The hPa Oceanproof Equipment brand has been created by Renaud «HPAMAN» Gohin in Paris in 2007. The brand is now managed by Renaud and his brother Geoffroy, a renowned mechanical engineer.

hPa, abbreviation of hectoPascal, is named after Blaise Pascal, the eminent French mathematician, physicist, and philosopher noted for his experiments with a barometer. hectoPascal has officially replaced Millibar for the measure of atmospheric pressure in 1971.

The logo of the company pictures a tetrapod, a concrete structure created to protect shores from the ocean power. It symbolizes the «oceanproofness» of the hPa goods.
